Turned for you

Stockmen and philanthropist Dan Bryant wanted his charitable trust to work primarily for the benefit of women and children – and it has been doing so in the Waikato since 1924. The Bryant Retreat for Women was established in the 1950s and has provided a haven for rest and relaxation ever since. It is fully funded by the DV Bryant Trust.

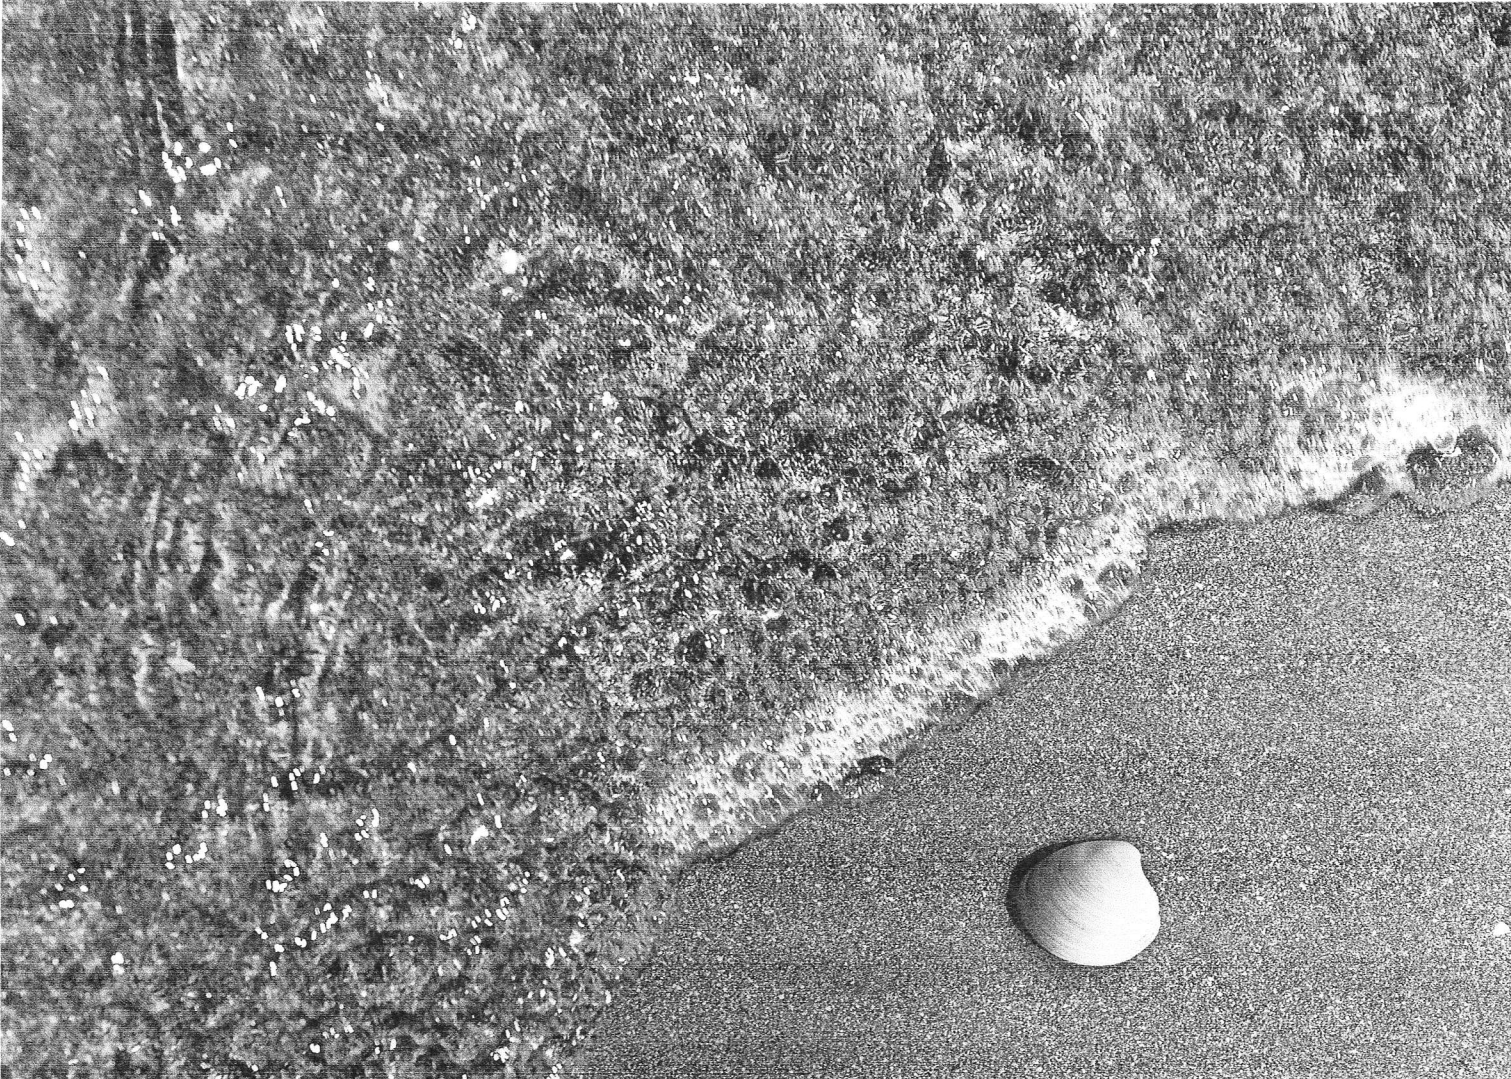

Bryant Retreat for Women was created to provide an environment in which women could rest and relax in quiet, calm surroundings. Situated on the waterfront of the inner Raglan harbour, the tranquil location is a stress-free space with its extensive gardens, spacious lawns and stunning views of the harbour and the hills beyond. Guests are within easy walking distance of the Raglan wharf and town shopping centre while both the foreshore and the beautiful surroundings nearby offer ample opportunity for restoring a sense of personal peace.

Three for you

The Retreat accommodates up to six women at any one time for a stay of 12 nights. There is no charge. The Bryant Trust funds all of the accommodation costs. You are not expected to do any housework, cooking or other chores. Other than being present at the three freshly-prepared meals each day, time at the retreat is largely yours to use however you wish.

There is always company when you need it, and solitude when you want time out. Our warm and welcoming staff are here to help and make your stay a very special time.

To make an application, please talk with your GP, counsellor or health provider. Referrals are done through you. GP and forms are on our website www.bryanttrust.co.uk
